"RIM OF THE DESERT"

A Two Reel MUSTANG PICTURE

with JACK PERRIN

Mary Marsdom who lives on the edge of the desert is loved by two men, Bob Vernon and Jack Wilkes. Mary is undecided in her choice. Having a romantic tendency she tells them that she will marry the man who first succeeds in bringing to her the lovely cactus blossom from "The Goal of Dying Men", a water hole in the remote desert sands.

The men journey out together. Jack steals away in the middle of the night, after emptying Bob's canteen. Bob discovers his loss in the morning, and after a bitter journey, obtains the blossoms but discovers that the water hole is dry.

On his return he is overcome by a sand storm and loses his horse. Jack rides up and offers him a drink for the blossoms. The thirst-crazed man refuses. Jack overpowers him and rides away.

Mary, fearing for the men, has a number of ranchers ride out to rescue them. They pass Jack and later find Bob, almost dead. Jack is exposed and arrested, and Mary realizes that she will be happier with Bob.
